Probiotics represent an interesting source of immune modulators to increase resistance to respiratory tract infections.

In this study, mice fed with Lactobacillus paracasei CnCm I-1518 showed reduced susceptibility to the influenza infection, associated with less accumulation of inflammatory cells in the lungs, faster viral clearance and general health improvement.